Symbol	Description
	It has been used since 1782 to represent American beliefs and values according to the Founding Fathers. It is the national emblem. It features an eagle, and a pyramid on the reverse side.
	Became the national bird in 1782. Symbolizes strength, freedom and courage.
	"Out of many, one". Symbolises the union of the 13 colonies making up the nation.
	This phrase was added to US currency in the mid 1950s.
	Signifies strength and duration, but also means that the nation is under construction.
	Personifies the entire United States. A tall, elderly man often represented with a striped top hat, a blue coat and striped trousers. It was used in a famous recruitment poster during WW2, and is still used today by many cartoonists.
	Located in Philadelphia, it was rung in 1776 to call citizens for the first reading of the Declaration of Independence. It is a symbol of liberty which can be heard each July 4th.
	It stands in New York harbour as a welcome to all. It was offered by France in 1886, but was originally meant to celebrate the centennial of the American Declaration of Independence in 1876.
	It is recited (mostly by schoolchildren), hand over heart, while saluting the flag. First used to celebrate Columbus Day in 1892.
	Written in 1814 by an American patriot, it became the US national anthem 1931.
	Means "he favours our undertakings". Symbolises the fact that providence often is on America's side.
	"New order of the ages": shows that a new era has opened for America.
	A carved memorial to four great American presidents: George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt.
	It has been the home of the legislative branch of the US government (the House of Representatives and the Senate) since 1800.
	Located at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, DC, it is the President's official residence. He works in the Oval Office.
